My thesis deals with behavioral problems, especially aggressive behavioral problems. The theoretical part describes the behavior and deal with the most common behavioral problems of children. For more details, I focused on aggression and factors affecting aggressive behavior in children. I also mentioned bullying in many schools today, a widespread problem. I focused on the specifics of facilities for children with behavioral, institutional and protective education and last but not least, the social work with minors.

In the empirical section, I characterized the specific facilities for institutional care, where research was conducted. The aim of the quantitative research was to show the incidence of behavioral disorders, due to which the child receives the educational facility, to identify the length of stay in the facility and the subsequent release of children under 5 years when I was employed in the device.

Finally, I analyzed the results of my research, I tried to answer the research questions raised and highlighted the most important phenomenon of behavioral disorders - family and family environment.
